REASONS FOR RESTORATION.

Mr. Nordhoff Explains the United States' Responsibility for Affairs in Hawaii.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 4, 1893.—The New York Sun calls it the "counsel of madness" in me to write that the President and Congress ought to put affairs in Hawaii back to where they stood in early January, before the American Minister landed the American troops and Gatling guns, under whose protection the revolutionists safely proclaimed themselves and took possession of the government. I should call it rather the counsel of honor and safety. The Sun says:

"Mr. Charles Nordhoff, recently in Hawaii writing letters to the New York Herald, appears to be crazy. No other explanation of his behavior and utterances since his return to San Francisco exactly fits the case.

"He and his newspaper are now actually advocating the re-establishment of monarchy in Hawaii and the restoration of a ridiculous queen to the throne that was upset last January. Mr. Nordhoff and the Herald seem anxious that this Republic should undertake the job.

"Personal pique and disappointment can be dwelt upon and brooded over by minds of a certain type until the reason is shaken, if not actually overthrown."

These paragraphs from the Sun would certainly not be called an argument in any place where men are accustomed to reason. Here are a few facts bearing on the Hawaiian situation:

THE PEOPLE FAVOR THE QUEEN.

First—The great majority of the people of Hawaii, including foreign born and native born, whites and natives, desire the restoration of the constitutional government and of the Queen as its constitutional head. The revolutionary or provisional government have been asked constantly to take a vote on this question and have not so far dared to do so.

Second—The constitutional government was overthrown in January last, not by revolutionary force, but by the American troops and artillery, landed by Minister Stevens the day before the revolution and placed by his orders—not in the business quarter of the town, where, if necessary, they might be able to protect American life and property, but around the government buildings, where, an American officer told me, they were placed to coerce the government and protect the revolutionists. That is to say, it was literally under the shelter and protection of American guns and troops, that the revolutionists overthrew the constitutional government and took possession, not only of the government buildings, but of the arms and ammunition and artillery of the constitutional government. The revolution was thus the act of the United States by its minister and its troops under his orders.

WHAT MUST FOLLOW.

Third—This intervention by the American Minister in favor of revolution and against the government to which he was accredited has either to be assumed by our government or be disavowed. If it is assumed as correct, then our government establishes a precedent of far reaching consequences; for in that case an American Minister in any weak state—say in Central America—will be authorized to collude with, encourage, and when the time comes, land United States troops and gunboats to conspirators against the constitutional government to which he is accredited, and thus overturn the regular government at his will. All that the revolutionists need for success in all such countries is troops, guns, artillery and the countenance of the American Minister. If, then, the proceedings of Mr. Stevens are assumed by our government and thus made into a precedent every prudent ruler in Central America would be moved to write our President:—For heaven's sake to take away his Minister because regular and constitutional rule must be impossible, or at least precarious, so long as an American Minister with such powers was present. It is perhaps the sweet voice of a fluster one hears in the annexation press in the United States just now. If, on the other hand, the acts of Minister Stevens are disavowed, necessarily our government will be bound to restore affairs in Hawaii where they stood before the American troops were landed.

That done, no further intervention will be needed, for the restoration of the constitutional government and of the Queen at its head will accomplish itself at once. It will do that, because it is the system which the great mass of the voters want.

It is not our business surely to force upon the people of Hawaii a government which the great mass of them do not want and will not willingly accept.

AN EVIDENCE OF POPULARITY.

It is perhaps, an evidence of its popularity that the revolutionary government now fortifies itself with sand bags in its headquarters, adopts session laws and no bail laws and keeps up a system of spying and terrorism.

had the assurance of the father of the Princess before I left Honolulu that she and her friends would not consent to any such arrangement.

Finally, as to the Sun's "Counsel of Madness," the hope of annexation is dead in Honolulu. So much so that revolutionaries there acknowledge their aim is to continue themselves in power in some way contrary to the popular will, but to advise them to attempt that is really the "counsel of madness."

"The islands have been always an absolutely peaceful community. The sugar planters—scattered over different islands—have lived in absolute security of life and property. They have managed their contract laborers—natives, Chinese, Portuguese and Japanese—according to their will, but if the present rulers attempt to continue their rule without an appeal to the popular vote or against it there will naturally come disorder. The Queen, I believe, will be proclaimed in the other islands, leaving only Oahu, on which lies Honolulu, to the revolutionaries. These have no force to coerce the people of the other islands, who will refuse to pay taxes, and will set up the constitutional government and the Queen.

In the face of such a movement few of the planters will, I believe, resist. Those who attempted resistance would run the risk of a popular uprising, which would be signalized by the burning of cane fields and sugar mills. I do not believe that even such an uprising would be accompanied by personal violence, for the people are mild and gentle; but when once such a thing is begun there is no telling where it may end, particularly when Chinese and other Asiatics are present in large numbers.

It is more probable that the planters will join Mr. Claus Spreckels in demanding the restoration of the constitutional government and the Queen. That way lies popular contentment, peace, order and revival of business, which is now stagnant. The other way lies the possibilities I have pointed out. I should say to the Sun and its allies:—"Don't unchain the tiger."

CHARLES NORDHOFF.

"One of my customers came in today and asked me for the best cough medicine I had," says Lew Young, a prominent druggist of Newman Grove, Neb. "Of course I showed him Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and he did not ask to see any other. I have never yet sold a medicine that would loosen and relieve a severe cold so quickly as that Remedy does. I have sold four dozens of it within the last sixty days and do not know of a single case where it failed to give the most perfect satisfaction." 50 cent bottles for sale by all dealers.
